Area Overview

Situated just to the north of the City, Clerkenwell plays host to some magnificent Georgian houses and historic churches sandwiched between old warehouses, many of which have been turned into beautifully presented flats. Shakespeare, Hogarth, Lenin and Pepys have all had associations with Clerkenwell and some of the old trades such as printing and clockmaking still survive. New industries now sit comfortably alongside these traditional trades, with media companies now as prevalent as the diamond dealers of Hatton Garden.
